English

English rums have been traditionally imported from their colonies in the Caribbean and blended for aging and bottling. Molasses played a big part in the production and export throughout New England and ports of West Africa. The general style is produced is traditional distilled from molasses, dark, spiced, and aromatic.

French

French Rhum or Rhum agricole is predominately produced from sugar cane juice in French-speaking countries and territories. Column distilled, the agricole style has a fruity nose and relatively dry mouthfeel, with more vegetal tones. Cognac and Armagnac barrels may be used for aging these rhums.
